Among those who early secured good positions to see and hear were two ladies. The prisoner arrived early and was soon followed by the jury. As stated in yesterday's STAR, the jury was not secured until after fifty-nine of the seventy-five extra talesmen summoned had been examined, and not until the usual hour of adjournment—3:30—had been reached.

After a long consultation with his client Judge Wilson arose and asked that all witnesses for the government be excluded from the court room, and he of course realized that such a ruling should also exclude the witnesses for the defense. The court stated that as the proceedings would undoubtedly be published in full by the newspapers he did not see that much would be accomplished by the ruling, but he, nevertheless, would make the ruling, and therefore directed that all witnesses, both for the government and the defense, retire, which they did, to their manifest disappointment. THE GOVERNMENT'S OPENING ARGUMENT.

The case was then formally opened by Mr. Hugh T. Taggart, one of the district attorney's assistants. Mr. Taggart began by stating to the jury that the grand jury of the District had while it might not bring back from the Judge Wilson in opening the case for the de-fense said that all his client desired at the hands of the jury was a careful, patient hearing upon the jury that while the indictment did not charge manslaughter, yet the jury could, under the law in force in this District, bring in a verdict of manslaughter.

Judge Wilson further stated the difference between murder and manslaughter, dwelling upon the fact that not even all killing was un-

THE THEORY OF HAMLINE'S PIRTOI Mr. Taggart's remarks, said Judge Wilson, had been conspicuous for the absence of many material facts, among others that Frank Hamlink had a pistol, and the further very material fact that Frank Hamlink fired five shots from that pistol. It was not true, as claimed by Mr. laggart, that the defendant caught his wife by Taggart, that the defendant caught his wife by the wrist in such a way as to injure her. Instead the defendant merely said: "Amy, I wish to speak to you." Her brother replied in an insulting manner that she should not. The defendant replied: "She is my wife, and I have the right to speak to her." A pistol shot from Frank Hamlink was the reply, the ball passing through the defendant's coat: that young through the defendant's coat: that young Hamlink continued to fire, following the defendant for over forty feet until he fell dead, with the pistol hot from the discharge from all the fell dead, with the pistol hot from the discharge from all the fire charges that the fire charges the fire char with the pistol not from the discharge from an five chambers; that when young Hamlink's body was reached by the first person of the many attracted by the firing the pistol was found in the dead man's hand. The first shot, claimed Judge Wilson, was an isolated one, followed first by a moment's silence and then by a regular fusilade of shots the last shots her fired by young five extra talesmen summoned had been examined, and not until the usual hour of adjournment—3:30—had been reached.

THE LAST CHALLENGE.

A few moments before the jury was accepted Judge Wilson, with one peremptory challenge remaining to the defense, stated to the court that he would now turn the jury as it stood over to the government.

District Attorney Cole—Are you satisfied with the jury?

Judge Wilson—For the present, yes.

Judge Wilson—For the present, yes.

Judge Bradley—Then, judge, if the govern serious was reached by the first person of the many attracted by the firing the first person of the many attracted by the first person of the many at the defendant, had been more sinned against than sinning. The defense would show that the balls which entered Mrs. Schneider's body did not come from the defendant's pistol. The duty of the jury, said Judge Wilson in conclusion, was to the defendant a true deliverance give.

Judge Wilson spoke briefly and very earnestly, and his remarks created not a little sensation. At the conclusion of his remarks a large diagram, showing the scene of the shoot-THE FIRST WITNESS.

Henry W. Brewer, a civil engineer, was the first witness called, and testified that he made the measurements for the drawing and that the diagram was a correct representation of the locality. He then passed a line from the mark on the wall

Cross examined by Judge Wilson the witness said that he could not state definitely just where the pistol was held from which the ball which entered the window came; he could only state approximately.

PASTORS IN NEW FIELDS

Changes Made Among Methodist Preachers Washington Methodists spent a consid ortion of yesterday evening in discussing the ents of preachers for the M.E. churche for the ensuing conference year. These were announced in Baltimore vesterday and were printed in yesterday's STAR.

The more important of changes was that which brings to Foundry Church the Rev. Oliver A. Brown. Dr. Brown has for some time been pastor of the Eighteenth Street M. E. Church in New York city, and next previous to that appointment was located at Hoboken. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and Drew Theological Seminary, and is therefore possessed of educa-tional attainments far above the average. Physically Dr. Brown is imposing. He has a fine voice and is universally conceded to be a good-natured and even jolly specimen of minis-terial humanity. He is a good preacher, but he is not a specialist—he shines as an all-around paster.

A good deal of surprise was expressed when town church, most difficult to maintain, but Mr. Eldridge built it up wonderfully, and left it with a store of vitality which may last it for some time. He anticipates large opportunities for good work in Northeast Washington.

There was no change at Metropolitan. Dr. Corey has served four years, but it is stated that as the church had not succeeded in finding a pastor whom it deemed acceptable and who would come, it was decided that Dr. Corey should round out his five-year limit. should round out his five-year limit.

A serious and almost successful effort was made by some of the Baltimore churches to commit grand larceny. They wanted to steal the Rev. E. S. Todd, D. D., now paster of Hamline Church. Had Dr. Todd given the propositions even the slightest encouragement Hamline would have lost the preacher and paster it is so proud of. He elected to remain at his present station.

lost the preacher and pastor it is so proud of. He elected to remain at his present station, where he has been but one year.

Fourth Street gets the Rev. W. F. Speake, who has for the past six years been presiding elder of the East Baltimore district. Mr. Speake is not unknown in Washington. He is an energetic pastor and has the assistance of his wife and daughter in church work. Both ladies are exceptionally successful in that field of usefulness. Rev. W. M. Ferguson, who was Mr. Speake's predecessor at Fourth Street, goes to South Baltimore station.

THE PENSION OFFICE INQUIRY. The House Special Investigating Committ

The special committee of the House engaged in an investigation of the management of the pension office resumed its inquiry today. A. C. Tanner, chief of the appointment division of the Interior Department, was examined with reference to his having demanded the resignation of Green B. Raum, jr., by direction of Assistant Secretary Bussey, who in a personal note signed C. B. requested witmade the point between Nos. 1739 and 1741 Q ness at once to secure the resignation of —, to take effect in thirty days, blank meaning young Raum, it being desired to keep the mat-ter quiet until the resignation was consum-mated. Witness said that Acting Secretary Chandler accepted the resignation, to take effect at once, but subsequently modified the acceptance so as to allow thirty days' leave, Gen. Bussey saying he would take the responsi-bility therefor.

THE RESIGNATION OF HOWARD Mr. Enloe then asked witness about a paper relating to the resignation of Edward Howard, a clerk of class 3 in the pension office.

A letter from the commissioner in regard to the Taylor matter was read, in which the commissioner recommended that Taylor term-inate his service by reason of the limitation of the period for which he was appointed.

It was part of his duty to receive Mrs. C.'s mail, and letters having been missed Detectives Raff and Weedon were called in. Suspecting Boles, a decoy letter was pisced in the mail and it was with others, placed in Mrs. G.'s ber, but it did not find its way to her.
